

MEISTER SPORTS MANAGEMENT PRESENTS

KEN DUKE

TWO TOP-10'S IN 2015!! INSPIRATION

In one of the most exciting finishes of the 2013 season, 2.3 million people watched a beaming Ken Duke win the Travelers Championship.

As one Sports Columnist said "Duke's win was the feel good story of the year. Not just in golf, but in all sports."

Ken was born in the small town of Hope Arkansas, the same hometown of President Bill Clinton.

In 7th grade Ken was diagnosed with Scoliosis, a curvature of the spine. He wore a back brace 23-hours a day for two years, but the condition worsened.

When the curvature reached 72%, Ken underwent spinal surgery in which a 16-inch metal rod was attached to his spine to facilitate straightening.

Without surgery, the pressure on Ken's heart and lungs would become life-threatening.

Just six months after surgery -- while playing in a back-brace -- Ken won Medalist honors at a District Tournament.. and he just kept going.

At the age of 46, Ken still has that 16-inch metal rod in his back, a constant companion and reminder of what he's been through. But Ken continues to 'give back' raising funds for Scoliosis research and treatment, and visiting children who are suffering from the condition.

Ken Duke: a walking, talking, inspiration. A role model for the real world.
